What's New In?

I have been using powerbb for a few months now and I'm very happy with it. A very friendly and simple to use forum software. I have been using it for over a year now and have hosted over a dozen boards with it. I've found most of the issues people have been having to be issues with their site setup. In most cases, with the right setup, they simply don't exist. If you are looking for a powerfull forum software, with the friendliness of phpbb then PowerBB is definitely worth a look. It is very easy to setup and use and can handle a good amount of users and pages. If you do decide to use this forum software though, you should know that a lot of the documentation is in french. There are english tutorials though and plenty of users around who are willing to help. As far as I'm concerned it is a great software! I hope you find it as good. Good description of the software but there is no mention of it's features (please post a list of features here, I would love to check it out). I would have to recommend against it though if you have a school/university site, due to there being no way to set different permissions for different users (for example you could have separate boards for students and teachers). It is free and very powerful, and is definitely worth a look. I had a school/university site for about a year and a half, and chose to use it instead of phpBB. I found it to be just the right size, and with all the features I needed. I would highly recommend it! I found it to be just the right size, and with all the features I needed. I would highly recommend it! I was more interested in checking out a live site to see if it was worth installing, thanks. I just recently downloaded the software and loaded it on a test site to see if it was any good and I have to say it was awesome! The best forum system I have ever used. I don't know why phpBB has always been a favorite but it is definitely better than it's competition. I have the problem that phpBB forums don't allow you to create a thread without registering with the forum so I hope someone
