I applied a hotfix for this update but it didn't solve anything You think this update will be solved with this hotfix? I've removed the two files on my workstation and replaced with those from the SLP server but the error still occurs I've removed the two files on my workstation and replaced with those from the SLP server but the error still occurs You think this update will be solved with this hotfix? I think that i can fix this with this patch: The hotfix is for the nautilus file manager. So i don't think it will affect our update. I could reproduce the problem with this hotfix. I don't know what caused the problem in the first place. If you are connected to the network during the update you shouldn't encounter this problem. You said that you had already applied the hotfix but the problem still occurs. Did you restart your Windows Service after the hotfix was installed? Yes I've restarted the Windows Service after i installed the hotfix. You used the hotfix on your Server 2012 but still have the problem. When you update the hotfix f30f4ceada
