-- Simple and intuitive user interface with focus on speed. -- Rename or create conditions, one by one. -- Open and browse archives and the list of files with a dedicated folder browser. -- Open and browse archive contents and list of files. -- Rename multiple files with a preview of before and after changes. -- No file copy to cloud services. -- Notifications, previews and project logging with full text search. -- No adverts or 3rd party software. -- Works with any external storage device (removable SD card, USB stick or even external hard drive). -- No personal information is stored. -- No Wi-Fi or mobile data connection is needed to use the app. -- See official website: www.kaimeisi.com There are a lot of types of application you can use to watch YouTube videos in the easiest way possible, ranging from simple and automatic to more advanced and complicated. But you can also find applications that do more than this, such as an application that creates home movies, with picture and video galleries, a project organizer, a playlist manager, and a desktop, portable version of the popular video player – to mention but a few. However, in terms of popularity and user base, the most popular player is YouTube, which is also easily accessible from an application that functions as a video streaming player. The application doesn't remove the need to actually use the YouTube website, just like you need to use the browser to access the site directly. Apart from working as a YouTube video streaming player, you can choose from a number of functions, like view the videos in any format available, with the option to watch the playback in full screen, to save or load the playlist, to pause, stop or resume the video, or to show the full screen image, etc. It may sound complicated at first, but the application has a great step by step tutorial that explains all the basics and more in detail, so you can get the most out of it from the get-go. So, if you haven't heard of the application or are not familiar with the concept, you should know that the application works as a web browser, through which you can visit any of the web pages on the Internet. It does so by using the embedded YouTube Player with the ease of streaming the video directly to your computer, which means no need to access the website from the browser. It is an application with
