About Mad Head Games: In 2004, a group of passionate amateur game makers made their mark with the first online game portal PlayGeeks. PlayGeeks started the game portal as a massive community with thousands of games and tons of members. One or two years later, PlayGeeks began to evolve towards a more professional development strategy. Within a few years, the online game portal grew into a full-fledged indie game developer, Mad Head Games. In 2014, we founded our own game studio and started on our first mobile game, Treasure Trail. Over the years, we continued to release more and more games. Our newest game, Adam Wolfe, is the result of a community collaboration.
